

My Ecofact

Archaeologists divide the objects they find into types. They classify them.

- A. Artefacts are things made by people.
- B. Ecofacts are natural, unworked, things like bones and seeds.

Ecofacts can tell us about

- what plants and animals were around in the past
- how people farmed the land
- the food people ate.

Is your ecofact part of a plant or an animal? _____

Try to find out what kind. Make a drawing of the ecofact.

In the past, parts of animals were used to make things.

You can find pictures on the Canterbury Archaeological Trust website. Do a 'CAT KIT' search. When you've found the page, look for Boney Bits pictures.

List some things people made. You could draw one of them or paste a picture.
